

13 families. 42 plugins. Four usable Logic templates.

This handoff shows how the full DIHWorld Audio suite can appear inside template systems without forcing all processors to run at once. Each template uses primary family placement, secondary/bus guidance, group lanes, and parallel behavior from the current DIH families canon.

Reference Logic layout: family lanes with active and alternate plugin positions.

Legend

Solid chip = active starter. Dashed chip = bypassed alternate. Dotted chip = QC / observation.

Primary tells the first recommended position. Secondary tells the next useful position. Group/Bus names the lane. Parallel confirms send/return behavior.

The template images are planning schematics, not a command to stack every plugin on every bus.

SECONDARY

PARALLEL

Yes

Use this when a session needs three deliberate parallel lanes feeding one clean collection point. The buses carry the work; source tracks stay lean.

Operating rule

No more than three active processors in a musical pass. Extra plugins are bypassed alternates, scene reveals, or QC-only tools.

Start sends around -18 dB as an audition point; approve final placement by bypass/output matching and zero unintended clipping.

PARALLEL

Optional

Use this as the main multitrack routing template. Every bus has a musical job, and substitutions replace slots instead of extending chains.
